

Texas natural gas and oil producers play a major role in our state's economy. Last year these companies paid five times more state and local taxes and royalties—per job—than the average private sector company. That's $8.5 billion for Texas, in 2009 alone.

Natural gas and oil producers understand that their important place in the state's economy includes a responsibility to protect workers, communities and the environment in Texas. In fact, repeated air quality test results consistently demonstrate the success of industry efforts to protect our environment.

Abundant, American natural gas and oil mean growth and prosperity for Texas, safely and responsibly.

Learn more at www.FoundationForEnergyEducation.org

Driving Our Economy. Protecting Our Communities.

FOUNDATION FOR
Energy Education